John Delaney Killed in Clark.

John Delaney, of Paris, was shot and killed by Frank Taylor on the farm of Steve Swift, five miles from Winchester Tuesday afternoon about five o'clock. Chief of Police McCord accompanied by Coroner Nunnally, both of Winchester, upon receiving information of the killing drove to the Swift farm, where they placed Taylor under arrest and lodged him in the Winchester jail.

There were no eye-witnesses to the tragedy. Both men were employed by Alvin Hicks, of this city, who is engaged in the lumber business, and having bought a number of trees from Mr. Swift, was engaged in cutting the timber and hauling out the logs.

Shortly before the killing Hicks saw the men in company at a gate leading to the Swift farm and their failure to arrive at the barn with the team they were driving prompted him to go in search of them. On going out to the road he found Delaney lying on the ground with a bullet hole in his left side. Lying close to his left hand was a 32 calibre Smith & Wesson revolver. His coat and shirt were badly powder burned.

Returning to the logging camp he met Taylor and asking him what had happened he was told that Delaney had killed himself. Taylor said he was going to leave the camp but Hicks told him he must remain there. Hicks had been working both men for a long time but had run out of work for Taylor and the latter had been employed for the past month stripping tobacco. Hicks was to give Taylor employment Wednesday morning.

Bishop Delaney, a son of the dead man, said that he met Taylor who told him his father had killed himself. Previous to the killing Taylor was considerably under the influence of liquor. When the officials went to the Swift farm, where they placed Taylor under arrest, they found him lying on a bed with his coat off and an empty revolver holster strapped under his left arm. He admitted to the officers that the revolver found by the side of Delaney was his and that he had shot Delaney in self defense.

The jury at inquiry held before Coroner Nunnally returned a verdict that Delaney came to his death by a pistol fired by the hand of Taylor.

Information of the killing was received here Tuesday night by relatives and Charles and J. E. Delaney, both of this county, went to Winchester early Wednesday morning to take charge of the remains, which were brought to this city and taken to the home of Charles Delaney on the Clintonville pike. The remains were interred in the Catholic cemetery yesterday afternoon at 2 o'clock.
